

ALADDIN

Name: _____

ACT ONE

Magician: Aha! I told you it was here.

Aladdin: It's just a cave. I thought you said it was special.

Magician: It is! It's filled with riches.

Apprentice: Gold and diamonds.

Aladdin: Well, what are we waiting for?

Magician: Only you can go in Aladdin.

Aladdin: Great.

Magician: But first you must bring me a lamp.

Apprentice: Are you feeling OK, Master?

Aladdin: A lamp? A plain old lamp? With all that treasure?

Magician: Bring me the lamp, then you can have whatever you want.

Aladdin: Sure, I can do that.

{roll away big boulder}

Aladdin: Wow! Look at this!

Magician: Aladdin. Where are you? Have you found the lamp yet?

Aladdin: Oh yeah, I forgot. Hey. I'm stuck. Help me through.

Magician: First give me the lamp.

Aladdin: Help me through and then I'll give you the lamp.

Magician: Give me that lamp. It's mine. Help me, apprentice! {all 3 fight for lamp}

Aladdin: Well, you're not getting it until you help me out.

Magician: Aargh! All right then. Stay in there. I'll get another boy to help me. {roll boulder again}

Aladdin: Hey! Hey, what are you doing? Let me out of here.

Aladdin: Now what do I do? It's very dark in here. I wonder if there's any oil in this lamp? If I could just get this to light.

Genie: I am the Genie of the lamp. What do you require?

Aladdin: I just wanted some light so that I could see.

Genie: Your wish is my command. Do you want a hundred torches or a crystal chandelier?

Aladdin: What I'd really like is to get out of here. Can you do that?

Genie: Of course I can. I'm a genie. But are you sure you wouldn't like a chandelier? Lighting is my specialty.

Aladdin: Maybe later.

Genie: Your wish is my command.

Aladdin: Can you give me anything I want?

Genie: You are the master of the lamp. Your wish is my command.

Aladdin: I'm too tired to think of wishes right now. I just want to go home.

Genie: Your wish ...

Aladdin: I know, I know. But I think I'd rather walk.

Genie: I have a better idea.

Aladdin: What's this? {show wheelie}

Genie: It's a flying carpet. It's almost brand-new. Only has 725 km on it.

Aladdin: You're right. This is much better than walking.

ACT TWO

Mother: Sleeping late again, Aladdin? And still bringing home junk from the market, I see. Look at this. It's filthy.

Genie: Your wish is my command.

{hit Genie with broom}

Aladdin: It's all right, Mother. It's just the Genie of the lamp. He's come to live with us.

Mother: Live with us? And what do you think we're going to feed him? We hardly have enough for ourselves.

Aladdin: He doesn't need food. He can give us whatever we want. Watch this. Genie?

Genie: Yes, master?

Aladdin: My mother would like a feast fit for a queen

Genie: Your wish is my command.

Mother: Oh, my! All this for me?

Aladdin: Yes, and that's not all. Genie? Bring me treasure fit for a Sultan.

Genie: Your wish is my command.

Mother: Oh, Aladdin. We're rich.

Aladdin: Yes, we are. But there's only one thing I really want.

Genie: Oh, goodie. I was hoping you'd let me do some decorating. You could really use some new curtains. Pure silk. What do you think?

Mother: And what's wrong with my house? I'll have you know, we have a very nice house.

Aladdin: I don't want curtains, Genie. I want to marry Princess Bali.

Mother: Are you crazy? The Sultan will never allow you to marry his daughter.

Aladdin: He will now that I'm rich. {make it rain money}

ACT THREE

Aladdin: Mother. We're here.

Aladdin: Mother, this is the Sultan and his daughter, Princess Bali.

Mother: Welcome to my home, great Sultan.

Sultan: I am very pleased to meet the mother of my future son-in-law.

Princess Bali: You must be very proud of your son. He's always helping others and giving gold to the poor.

Sultan: Aladdin built a magnificent palace for me. The finest I've ever seen. You should ask Aladdin for a palace of your own.

Mother: There's nothing wrong with my house. I like it the way it is.

Princess Bali: Would you like to help with the wedding? Aladdin has invited everyone in the village.

Sultan: It will be a magnificent affair.

Mother: We should have a special meal to celebrate the wedding. I'll be right back.

Sultan: Now then. Should we have camels or horses for the wedding procession?

Magician: New lamps for old. New lamps for old.

Princess Bali: Excuse me, sir.

Did you say you would give a brand new lamp for an old one?

Apprentice: Yes, special offer today only.

Magician: That's right. Sparkling new ones for old rusty ones.

Princess Bali: That would be a nice surprise for Aladdin.

Magician: Thank you, my dear.

Princess Bali: It's so shiny and new. I can't wait to show Aladdin. Aladdin! Aladdin! I have a surprise for you.

Princess Bali: Oh, where's Aladdin. I must show him this.

Magician: Sorry my dear. You won't be seeing your precious Aladdin for a long, long time. {rubs lamp}

Genie: Hi Aladdin. Wait, you're not Aladdin!

Magician: I'm your master now! Take this girl far away to the desert.

Genie: Your wish is my command. {sadly}

Princess Bali: Noooo! Help!

ACT FOUR

Aladdin: Is Princess Bali here?

Mother: No one is here. I work hard all day making a special meal and when I bring it out, what do I find? An empty house.

Aladdin: Oh no. Oh no.

Mother: Aladdin? What's wrong?

Aladdin: Princess Bali has disappeared and the palace I built for the Sultan is gone. It vanished before our very eyes. The Genie can help me. The lamp. Where is my lamp?

Mother: I don't have it.

Magician: Is this what you're looking for?

Aladdin: How did you get my lamp?

Magician: It's my lamp now. I tricked your little princess into giving it to me.

Apprentice: Yeah, silly girl.

Aladdin: What have you done with her?

Magician: Oh she's safe and sound. She's living in your precious palace, thousands of miles away, in the desert.

Apprentice: Far, far away.

Magician: Which is where I'm sending you and the Sultan. And I'll be ruler then.

Apprentice: And I'll be 2nd in charge.

Magician: Don't be silly! {hits Apprentice in head}

Aladdin: We have to stop him.

Mother: Sleeping powder?

Aladdin: Yes of course.

Aladdin: Before you send me to the desert, would you allow me one last cup of tea with my mother?

Magician: Oh, all right. But make it quick. I have a hundred evil deeds to do today. Let's see. 'Outlaw puppies.' Check. 'Take food from the orphanage.' Check.

Apprentice: Don't forget you're stealing candy from babies.

Magician: Oh thanks! I almost forgot.

Mother: Won't you join us? It's my special blend.

Magician: I am a little dry with all this work. Wait a minute — I know what you're doing. I'll have your tea.

Magician: Thought you could fool me didn't you? Well I'm . . . the . . . greatest. . . Magician . . . I... like... rainbows.

Apprentice: I think I'll be leaving now. {runs away}

Mother: It worked!

Genie: I am the Genie of the lamp. What do you require? Oh, it's you!

Aladdin: Welcome back. And now my first command. Bring

Princess Bali safely home.

Genie: Your wish is my command. {bring back Bali on carpet}

Mother: Aladdin! Look! The palace is back, too.

Aladdin: Now send this man to work in the salt mines.

Genie: My pleasure. I mean — your wish is my command.

Sultan: I think we should prepare for the wedding.

Mother: Now that you're back, do you think I could have those silk curtains and a Persian rug?

Genie: Your wish is my command.
